

CHANGE TO WARMER
WEATHER FORECASTFair and Rising Temperature
Is Promised to Frozen
City by Scarr.

STORM SKIDS NORTHEAST

Every Line of Endeavor Has Suffered From Record
Cold Spell.

The elder Scandinavians held to the belief that the cold was all old and ice and that the devil were frozen giants. In the last ten days Father Knickerbocker has come to have a very sympathetic understanding, one may guess, of that mythological. Without the aid of their hammer the frostbitten old gentlemen have been struggling for ten days to drive the ice giants back to their caves in the black north, but Papa's guardian angel has gone to Pittsburgh or Palm Beach and Providence was busy with the war, presumably. Taking one thing with another, Pa Knick has had a pretty tough time of it trying to keep his dollar mill going and to keep himself even minding warm.

Weather Boss Jim Scarr, who never admits anything without the certified facts and figures in front of him, confesses that there never has been anything like the present cold spell in the forty-seven years' records of the local Weather Bureau. For the last seven days the temperature has been from 20 to 35 degrees below normal. The warmest hour of the week came in the week of 4 P. M., when the mercury fell to 20 and climbed to 18 above. It has got so that just plain ordinary 35—freezing—would seem like a gay day in May. The old saw that all things are relative may be applied to mercurial fluctuations. Possibly folk would be minded to shuck heavy undergarments and go back to the old days if the mercury ever, by some impossible chance, hunched up to 40.

Oil at Exorbitant Price.
Poor old patient Papa Knick, whom everybody picks on, the old dear hasn't had enough coal lately to get Skidnastics in a sweat. He can't buy an oil stove for love or money. And if he could grab one or two of the price of kerosene is enough to make him lose his appetite for dinner. Dealers are pirating oil at anywhere from 15 cents to 20 cents a gallon. He can't even get kerosene for 10 cents a gallon. The department stores have sold 50,000 pairs of socks in the last week, and the supply seems to have hit bottom. He can't get sweaters, and fur or fleece lined gloves are at prices that make the angels weep. And all the while the mercury squats in the bottom of the tube, coming up for air only along toward the middle of the afternoon. One looks back to the color days of August, wondering with what kind of a fever anybody ever kicked about 90 degrees of heat. Take it by and large, up and down and across the middle, the elder Scandinavians had an inside tip about the meteorology of Hades.

But hark! Incline your head, shivering reader! Jim Scarr, discouraged by former predictions gone awry; undismayed by approaching meteorological don't approach; unembarrassed by rising temperature that doesn't rise, is at it again.
"There is a general change to warmer weather in progress," said James when Tex Scarr asked him what he had gleaned from his late afternoon session with the spirit world. "The weather was summoned by him to the service of the Whitehall Building. 'In this vicinity,' he continued solemnly, 'the weather has been predicted to be generally fair with slowly rising temperature. It will be cold to-night (last night), but it will be slightly warmer on Saturday, and there will be moderate northeast winds.'

Weather men must have alibis, but those phrases, "slowly rising temperature" and "slightly warmer," seem to be a bit of a joke. The weather yesterday from Sunny Jim of the Whitehall Building. One must make allowances for the cautiousness of the spirit world, for optimism's sake, that it will be much warmer by Sunday, with maybe a little hailing snow or boiling rain. Welladay!

Storm Misses New York.
Anyway, the prospects actually look better. The storm which battered the Atlantic coast and from the whistlers of ancient mariners, which played hob with coastwise shipping between Block Island and Newfoundland, has skidded off to the northeast. The place in the Missouri Valley, and in Kentucky and southern Indiana the natives are beginning to come out of the bourbon cellars. The cold front, the place in the celebrated U. S. A. yesterday was Canton, N. Y., where the mercury went plumb crazy and dropped to 14 below. The warmest spot was Galveston, Tex., where the mercury got up to 56 above. It was spotty around the rest of the country—59 above at St. Louis, 6 above at Philadelphia, 2 above at Washington, 16 above at Louisville, and 8 above at Portland, Me.

Here the temperature swung back and forth in a curious sort of way. At 1 P. M. it was 1 below zero, and at 2, 3, 5 and 6 A. M. it was 2 or more below. As the baby morning grew to boyhood the air warmed a trifle, the mercury leaping up to 3 above at 9 A. M., to 6 above at 10, 8 above at 11, 10 above at noon, and finally, after other small gains, reaching 18 above at 2 P. M., which was the hottest hour that New York has known for an entire week.

Naturally this unrelaxing spell of frigidly has made New York an ice-bound harbor. The North River is all but frozen, and hour after hour steel hulled ocean-going tugs struggle to keep narrow lanes of open water among the ice floes of the North and East Rivers. The fight to get coal to the city through the ice jams is described elsewhere; the most savage fight the New York has known. Tugs commandeered from the harbor as ice breakers, released strings of ice locked coal barges and brought them to Manhattan after labor and hardship that broke all records. The North River is cold ice down to about 180th street, and for the rest of the way south there are such masses of field ice and drifting bergs that it has become more and more difficult to keep coal routes open. In the East River conditions were not quite so bad, because the centre of the river was free.

Barges in East River.
Strings of barges were seen moving in the East River pretty continuously, but a fierce north wind kept piling block ice in ferry slips and along the Brooklyn water front. Any one can imagine what that meant to harbor traffic serving Brooklyn and Queens. Staten Island was a gray pile within white fields of ice. The frost giants seemed determined to cut Sister Richmond away from communication with her family, but they did not quite succeed. Railroad tugs smashed open ways in the Kill van Kull and Staten Island Bay, and the ferryboats kept going, although with irregular and slowing schedules. It turned out that the city fireboats were not of much value as ice breakers. They are too lightly built. There was danger of breaking them up against the ice walls. The only ice breakers found effective were the heavy towing tugs which have solid, steel reinforced hulls. It turned out that the city fireboats were not of much value as ice breakers. They are too lightly built. There was danger of breaking them up against the ice walls. The only ice breakers found effective were the heavy towing tugs which have solid, steel reinforced hulls.

The continued cold weather made more trouble in handling mail. There were delays that could not be prevented. The Post Office answered all complaints by pointing out that the department was dealing with an unprecedented situation, due not only to excessive cold weather which delayed trains that couldn't keep moving power, due to the removal of many passenger trains that had carried mail. According to Post Office officials the mail situation is serious, but might be much worse. The railway mail division was optimistic about clearing up the congestion of mail coming into New York city from up-State, from Pennsylvania and from New Jersey. Officials admitted that mail was many hours late. In some instances it was seven or eight hours late from Philadelphia alone. Mail that should have been from points up-State this morning had not arrived late yesterday afternoon. Every railroad in the area affected by the record breaking cold wave has been crippled or hampered in transporting mail.

With poor old Papa Knick it is always one thing if it isn't another. The old man had it all figured out to beat the cold famine and to keep warm by treating himself to oilstoves. The price went up on him (as always happens when he needs or wants some commodity badly), but he was willing to buy. Oil stoves for around $5 a week or two ago. Now the dealers ask $8 or $9 and can't supply oil stoves at that price even. Inquiry at the department and hardware stores yesterday brought the answer that the whole supply of many thousands of oil stoves had been sold, and that it was hard to tell when a new supply would be received by the retailers. There has been an enormous demand also for small, convenient gas heaters, and these still can be obtained at most shops that deal in such things. But so many are using gas for heat that the pressure is low and the result not entirely satisfactory.

Firewood Very Scarce.
Firewood is very scarce. Over in Staten Island people were going back into the interior, where there is a good deal of small, standing timber, and were cutting and hauling wood fuel. The other boroughs were not so fortunate. They had to buy when buying was possible. The demand for firewood was five or six times greater than normal. In Brooklyn the wood yards were swamped by the rush for fuel. Some yards refused to take further orders. Shipments were due, but freight congestion and other railroad troubles had delayed the supply of wood from this city from Virginia and Maryland, and the hard woods come from some parts of Long Island, from northern New York and from New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

But the oil famine is a more troublesome thing. More oil has been burned in New York city within the past week than in any other similar period in the city's history, oil dealers said yesterday.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

Twenty-nine schools in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx were closed yesterday either because of lack of coal or because of hot water or steam pipes dismantled by frost. But steam figures do not adequately describe the situation, for in scores of other schools whole wings were deserted while the children were crowded in other and warmer wings to study and to recite their lessons. In many schools rooms here and there were abandoned temporarily. The cold literally disorganized the whole of the city. Eight schools in Manhattan were closed, two because of lack of coal and six because of dismantled pipes. Seventeen were closed in Brooklyn, and eleven of these had coal whatever. Three were closed in the Bronx and one in Queens. About half of the Walden High School was closed yesterday. Eight schools in New York city from up-State, from Pennsylvania and from New Jersey. Officials admitted that mail was many hours late. In some instances it was seven or eight hours late from Philadelphia alone. Mail that should have been from points up-State this morning had not arrived late yesterday afternoon. Every railroad in the area affected by the record breaking cold wave has been crippled or hampered in transporting mail.

Women's Skating Shoes—Inexpensive
Tan, Mahogany and Black—$3.98, $4.98 and $5.98. All sizes. Shoe Dept., Main Floor.
Skates to be attached can be obtained on the 4th floor (try Dept.) from $1.50 to $7.00 pair.
ALL CARS TRANSFER TO Bloomington
55th to 60th St. Loc. to 3d Ave.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

Twenty-nine schools in Manhattan, Brooklyn, Queens and the Bronx were closed yesterday either because of lack of coal or because of hot water or steam pipes dismantled by frost. But steam figures do not adequately describe the situation, for in scores of other schools whole wings were deserted while the children were crowded in other and warmer wings to study and to recite their lessons. In many schools rooms here and there were abandoned temporarily. The cold literally disorganized the whole of the city. Eight schools in Manhattan were closed, two because of lack of coal and six because of dismantled pipes. Seventeen were closed in Brooklyn, and eleven of these had coal whatever. Three were closed in the Bronx and one in Queens. About half of the Walden High School was closed yesterday. Eight schools in New York city from up-State, from Pennsylvania and from New Jersey. Officials admitted that mail was many hours late. In some instances it was seven or eight hours late from Philadelphia alone. Mail that should have been from points up-State this morning had not arrived late yesterday afternoon. Every railroad in the area affected by the record breaking cold wave has been crippled or hampered in transporting mail.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.

When the coal famine became acute people rushed for kerosene, buying it in quantities large and small. The price went up by bounks. Wholesale concerns, such as the Standard Oil Company, the Texas and the Pure Oil companies, sell to retailers at 11 cents a gallon, but the retailers have been demanding as much as 17 and 18 cents and in many cases 20 cents a gallon. The big oil companies announced yesterday that they are going to keep track of profits and will refuse to sell kerosene to furnish them with oil. The Pure Oil Company abandoned its strictly wholesale policy yesterday and announced that it will sell oil at retail at 11 cents a gallon from its tanks at Madison avenue and 186th street. The plight of hundreds that appealed to the company made the decision to retail advisable. Yesterday the Standard Oil Company reported that its sale of kerosene had been far above its incoming supply for many days. The Pure Oil Company announced that its reserves were heavily drawn on. The Texas Company awaits new supplies.